All ideals are just like a dream or like clouds floating in the sky which come and go without leaving any trace behind. Accept only those habits that are considered good and discard those that considered bad. Our thinking and consideration must be based and be guided according to what is taught in Tao teachings because it is truly just and straight. No matter how intelligent a person proclaimed is, he does not always made the right decision. Our brain is of stubborn nature and refuses to accept the fact that our senses are faulty. This is because the information continuously and consistently fed into the brain by the sense organs is so incomplete. Therefore, even though you understand what I said at this moment, the next moment you forget or discard it completely because your eyes and ears give you an entirely different picture which your brain habitually accepts as the true picture.

Cultivating Tao will help us to develop right understanding, clear thinking, loving-kindness, compassion, right speech, right action, right livelihood, right effort, honest and a set of moral values.

c) Protection from disaster

Man creates his own disaster. Having lost their original character, they acted ravishly. Man's mind is more treacherous than mountains and rivers, and more difficult to know than the sky. For with the sky you know what to expect in respect of the coming of spring, summer, autumn and winter and the alternation of day and night. But man hides his character behind an inscrutable appearance. The evil deed of man give rise to the descending calamities. Examples of such are: floods, famines, fire, earthquake, cyclones, war and air-plane crashes etc.

A person who has obtained Tao will understand the reason to the descending of disaster from heaven. The only way to prevent the heaven made disaster happening on us, it to cultivate Tao earnestly. The performance of good deeds is to wash away our sins. The accumulation of good deeds is necessary because we need to settle the debt we have owed others for the long six million years (life-and-death cycle).

If a man is virtuous, pure in heart, wise and possess strong will-power, then such a person is much stronger than demons and evil spirits and they have no chance to harm us. While the evil spirits keep away from him, good spirits protect him. With these occurrences, a person's fate can slowly be changed because his past vices and evil deeds is being dissolved by his present virtuous and meritorious actions.
